Jarvis did tell CW12 that “you are a clean cut guy, well spoken, and I could really use your help in this.” CW12 said that Jarvis told him “this kind of work pays really well. One can work a couple of days and have enough to live on the rest of the month.” 11. CW12 said that Chomyn returned the keys to the van and said “there is a package behind the seat and send my regards to Dana.” 12. CW12 said he was instructed to meet with Joseph Martin as Martin was “running the Tucson operations.” 12. CW12 said that Chomyn told him that “they had come to a decision,” and that the rest of the marijuana, minus the one bale that Chomyn inspected, had to go East. CW12 said Chomyn asked him if he was ok to drive the marijuana East. Chomyn relayed instructions from JARVIS to drive the marijuana to Ft. Wayne, Indiana and to call a specific number once he arrived. 15. CW12 said that he could rent a mini-van to move product for Jarvis and Jarvis told him “I’m not sending it in mini-vans anymore.” CW12 said that Jarvis explained that the mini-vans were getting pulled over by police too often. Jarvis explained that the best place to hide things was in the open. 65. CW12 said he ran into Bill Jones and Jones said he was “hoping Dana (JARVIS) would call him and give him one of those high paying jobs.” 66. CW12 said that Donald Trujillo was required to drop the load of marijuana at the Bernalillo house because several weeks or months before Trujillo had a load of marijuana stolen from his garage at his Santa Fe residence and Jarvis did not trust him. When asked how he knew this information, CW12 said that Jarvis told him about the theft of marijuana and his reluctance to have Trujillo transport loads of marijuana for his DTO. 69. In the fall of 2004, CW12 said he was living at the Ash Street address when Jarvis called him and said, “I was wondering if you could help me with something.” Jarvis explained to CW12 that someone dropped something off at the Bernalillo house and there is something wrong with it. Later CW12 said he met with Jarvis at a bar in Albuquerque and Jarvis explained to CW12 that the “buyers” were having trouble moving (selling) the large bales of marijuana. Jarvis said he needed smaller bales so the “buyers” could “turn the marijuana around faster,” meaning the buyers could sell the bulk marijuana faster if it was packaged in smaller units. Jarvis then asked CW12 to go to the Bernalillo house to break up the marijuana into smaller sizes. Later, after CW12 returned to Albuquerque he said that Sanford and Jarvis called him and said, “we got bad news... our buddy got pulled over,” referring to the arrest of Donald Trujillo in Nebraska. 77. CW12 said he and Sanford were assigned to re-weigh the marijuana and to purchase a dozen suitcases of differing sizes and colors. When asked why he was ordered to purchase the suitcases, CW12 explained that Reid was going to fly the marijuana to its destination and Reid was very detail oriented and somewhat nervous about the trip. CW12 said that Reid wanted to make sure everything looked normal and by packaging the marijuana in suitcases this satisfied Reid’s request of Jarvis. CW12 said that Reid was concerned about appearances and Jarvis was concerned about making Reid happy. CW12 said that Jarvis told him “we have a request that things be packaged in suitcases.”
